"Home of General Sherman."

This was the home of General Wm. Techumseh Sherman famous Union General of the Civil War. The house which was built in 1850 was presented to General Sherman by the people of St. Louis, after the war.

The original building was typical of the houses of that period with hip roof and wood cornice. An observation tower surmounted the roof. The windows were trimmed with ornamental stone heads and sills. Recent alterations have destroyed all architectural interest.

It is now used as a negro apartment house and is owned by Dr. John Brahm.
